ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to express my sincere gratitude for the help, incentive and support I received from all those who gave their time and shared their knowledge to made this study possible.

My most sincere appreciation and profound gratitude are extended to Asst. Prof. Dr. Sakda Jongkaewwattana, my academic advisor as well as chairperson of my thesis research committee for his valuable advice, immeasurable guidance and encouragement throughout my graduate program. I am sincerely indebted to his enormous attention in the correction and revision of this thesis.

I am also equally grateful to other members of advisory committee, Ajarn Phrek Gypmantisiri, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Tavatchai Radanachaless and Asst. Prof. Dr. Pattana Jierwiriapant for their invaluable suggestions, correction and constructive comments during my research.

With regards, gratefully thanks are also extended to the chairman of Agricultural Systems Program, Ajarn Phrek Gypmantisiri who kindly help me in solving problems during my study in this program. I am also gratefully to all lecturers and staffs of Multiple Cropping Center, Faculty of Agriculture, Chiang Mai University for their helping, sharing knowledge, experiences and services during the study periods to complete my study successfully.

It is greatly pleased to thank the leaders and staff of Hue University of Agriculture and Forestry, Vietnam for their kind help and significantly contributed to fulfillment of my field experiment.

I wish to acknowledge all AGS students, especially all my classmates for their warm, friendship, companionship and kindness. Equally, I would like to thank Vietnamese oversea in Chiang Mai and all Vietnamese students for their helping, encouraging and sharing experiences during the time I was far away from home. Thanks are due to Dr. Patrick O'Connor, lecturer of Adelaide University of Agriculture, Australia for his correction in English grammar of my thesis.

I would also like to acknowledge Department of Technical and Economic Cooperation of Thailand Government for providing financial support for my graduate work.

Finally, my greatest appreciation goes to my parents and my parents in law for their love and support during these years while I have studied in Thailand. Very special thanks should be reserved for my beloved husband, Do Dinh Thuc whose love, inspiration, patience and sacrifices let me reach up to this level.
