CHAPTER 7

CONCLUSION

The effects of Pilates training resulted in improvement of ability to control lumbopelvic stability, trunk and hamstring flexibility, and pain intensity. The improvement of psychological stress is still inconclusive, however the trend toward greater decrease in stress was found after participated in Pilates training program. Therefore, Pilates training can be used as an effective therapeutic approach for chronic low back pain management.

ลิขสิทธิ์มหาวิทยาลัยเชียงใหม่ Copyright © by Chiang Mai University All rights reserved