CHAPTER VI

CONCLUSIONS

This study demonstrated for the first time that the \( TBX22 \) mutation may be associated with cleft lip and palate with ankyloglossia, hypodontia of a maxillary permanent lateral incisor and a maxillary second premolar and upper limb anomalies. No association was found between \( TBX22 \) and isolated ankyloglossia or isolated hypodontia.