ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The writing of this thesis has been one of the most significant academic challenges the author has ever had to face. Without the support, patience and guidance of the following people, this study would not have been completed. It is to them that the author owes her deepest gratitude.

In the first place the author would like to record her gratitude to Professor Dr. Peter Calkins for his supervision, advice, knowledge and commitment to the highest standards inspired and motivated to me. The author would also like to thank Dr. Thein Swe for his comments on this thesis.

The author would like to thank co advisor Professor Dr Daniel Schoch and general advisor Dr Manoj Potapohn taught her very good academic knowledge and guidance for the thesis. Thank you very much to the Dean, professors and lectures of the Faculty of Economics, Chiang Mai University. And the author also would like to extend her grateful thanks to all the staffs of Faculty of Economics, especially Pi Apple, Pi Pae, Pi Yam and all staffs for their guidance and kindness to her.

It is impossible for the author to become a student without the generous funding support from Heinrich Boell Foundation (HBF), Southeast Asia. The author would like to thank Olga Duchniewska (former Program Coordinator) and Rainer Einzenberger (Program Coordinator Myanmar/Burma, Assistant to the Director) who closely monitored and encouraged me. All staffs from Heinrich Boell Foundation for their times and support during this study period.

The author would like to thank Dr. Nay Win Maung, Daw Aye Mya Hlaing, Dr. Wah Wah Maung, Ma Myat Thet Thitsar, Ma Nwet K Khine and Ma Phyu Pyar Aung for their valuable recommendations.

Many thanks in particular to Dr. Theingi Myint (Yazin Agriculture University), Dr. Thin Htut (Agricultural Research), Dr. Myo Aung Kyaw (Humphrey Fellow), Daw Khin Aye Mu (Yangon Institute of Economics). The author is much indebted to all of you for your valuable advices.

The author would like to extend her grateful thanks to all the staff from Network Activities Group (Pyapon), U Thang Cin Thawng, U Hla Min (GRET, Bogalay), Ko Han Soe, Ma Ni Ni Than (UNOCHA, Bogalay), Ma Khay Mar (UNOCHA, Yangon), Ko Hein Zaw Htwe (World Vision, Bogalay), Michael Kyaw Lay (NAP, Yangon) and Ma Seint San Zaw for supporting valuable information.

The author also benefited by outstanding works from Ko Aung Htun and Ma Nwel Nwel San with their valuable advice in discussion, field research and furthermore, using their precious times to accompany with her for data collection.

It is pleasure to express the author's gratitude whole heartily to Dr. Daw Hla Myint, Ma Ei Cho, Ma Theint Thient Aung for her stay in Yazin Agriculture University during preliminary survey and the families from Pyapon and Bogalay for their kind hospitality during the research group's stay in field.

The author would also acknowledge Ma Pyi Pyi Thant for her advice and her willingness to share her experiences and thoughts with the author, which was fruitful for shaping up the author's ideas and research.

The author's parents deserve special mention for their inseparable support and prayers. Her mother, Daw Hla Myint Kyi, in the first place is the person who put the fundament her learning character, showing her the joy of intellectual pursuit ever since I was a child. The author's father, U Ngwe Thein, is the one who sincerely raised her with his caring and gently love. Ko Nan Win, Ma Ni Ni Lwin, Ko Si Thu, Ma Kyi Pyar and Ma Khine Lay for being supportive and caring siblings.

Words fail to express the author's appreciation to her best friends Myat Thura Aung, Thura Win, Yu Yu Myint Than and Khin Sandi Thein (Yangon Institute of Economics). Many thanks to my seniors, friends and class mates: Nang Kham Nyo Oo, Jenny, Jony, Faai, Ice, Mew, JJ, Eim, Ploy, Pat, P, Mint, Aor and Perm. You all are very kind to me. She will miss all of you and the time we spent together.

The author owes the largest debt to the people from Irrawaddy Delta who survived, I hope this thesis ensure that the real situation of Delta to all who interested in disaster relief. Their kindness, generosity, and tolerance to my constant questioning helped me make this effort possible. To them, the author would like to express her sincere gratitude and thanks. Although this work is the product of the deeply appreciated assistance and support from a great number of people, needless to say, the author is responsible for any mistakes or inadequacies the readers may find in it.
